$75 Buys Lot in The Hunt's Point Section of Bronx

Bargain Prices Prevail at the Last Session of the Three Days' Sale; Corners Go for $160 to $575

Seventy-five dollar lots in New York City sounds provincial. Sound as it may, the facts are many lots in the Hunts Point section of The Bronx, near trolleys, subways, schools and churches, sold yesterday at auction in the Vesey Street salesroom for $75, $80, and $100 each. It is the first time in many years that an auction room crowd has heard the auctioneer knock down New York City property for bids as small as those which prevailed yesterday.

The property sold is in the Terminal section of East Bronx, land made as the needs and demands of The Bronx increased and more space was required to facilitate matters. The property was owned by the estates of Hugh J. Grant, former Mayor of New York; Anthony N. Brady, and George F. Johnson. It was the wish of the executors and trustees of the estates to dispose of the land at any price that the public would pay and Mr. Day carried out the order. Those who failed to accept the invitation extended by Mr. Day to investors, speculators and builders through the advertising columns of the newspapers to come to the sale with $10, $20, or more as he was sure bargains were to be had, lost the opportunity of getting a New York lot for less money than has been paid in many years.

The sale yesterday consisted of 267 lots, which were sold for a total of $52,000. They were lots held over from the previous day's session, when 717 lots and the six waterfront plots were sold. It was said last night at Mr. Day's office that the total of the bids for the last two days' sale was $2,075,000.

The highest price paid yesterday was $575 for the triangular plot at the junction of Hunts Point Avenue and Halleck Streets. The southwest corner of Viele Avenue and Whittier Street, a lot 25 feet on the avenue and 100 feet on the street, sold for $160. It was about the lowest price paid for a corner during the day. Prices for other corners ranged from $220 to $900. Extra deep lots, adjoining the $160 corner, and fronting on the west side of Whittier Street, sold for $75 each, and lots on the same block near Ryawa Avenue brought $100 each. The corner of Ryawa Avenue and Whittier Street sold for $250 and the entire block on the west side of Whittier Street, opposite the above mentioned property, sold for $80 a lot.

Seventy-five dollars a lot was the price paid for land abutting these lots and fronting on Drake Street, while $125 each was paid for lots directly across the street. Property further north brought better prices, inside lots selling for $170 to $175 a lot in the blocks just north of Viele Avenue. Inside lots on East Bay Avenue sold for $270 and $280 each and corners on this thoroughfare at $350, $370 and $390.

The southeast corner of Hunts Point and Oak Point Avenues, opposite the Joseph Rodman Drake Park, sold for $300.

Mr. Day said that it was a great day for bargain hunters because there is no property in New York City that is not worth a good deal more than $75 and $100 a lot.
